Local Updates:

- Delaware County is working hard to set-up a mobile testing center for the county. In a teleconference this afternoon, representatives are aiming to have the testing center operational by the end of the week. Location and hours of operation are yet to be released. Please reference the Delaware County website link above for additional resources.
- The state and county are exploring the possibility of using the currently vacant Glenn Mills campus for a regional quarantine recovery center.
- The county medical officer assesses the local hospital capacity as adequate for the demand the county is current experiencing. However, all note the current situation is rapidly evolving.
